NM057: BOUTROS BUBBA – RIDICULOUS WRISTS

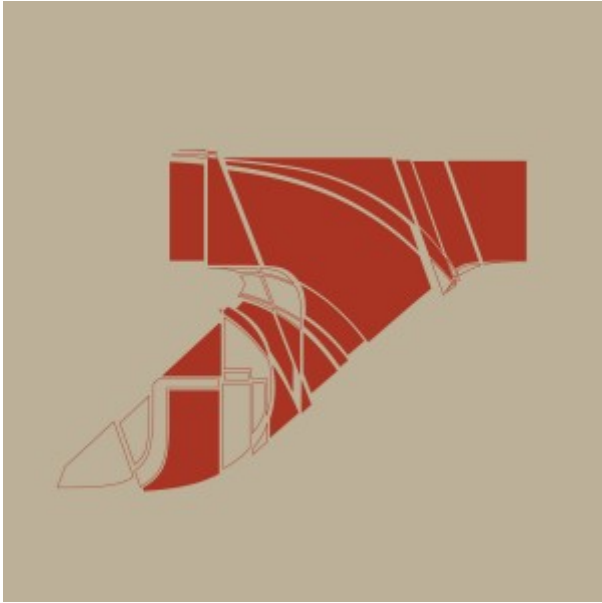

Ridiculous Wrists is the second album of the Dutch noiserock trio formed around multi-instrumentalist / absurdist Spoelstra. Ridiculous Wrists was recorded during a 9-day retreat in a large empty house in the middle of nowhere. The nine songs that wound up on Ridiculous Wrists vary a lot in style, but together create a clear image of a band with the ambition to surprise the listener again and again. The music brings to mind quirky bands like U.S. Maple, and the cartoonish textual themes like people in bunnysuits offending motorgangs would be no mismatch with the Skin Graft roster either. Ridiculous Wrists is limited to 100 cd's. The artwork, done by Spoelstra, is entirely in 3D and comes with a pair of 3D goggles.

NM059: PEAL - III

The Hague-based quartet Peal unleashes an avalanche of riffs and beats. Fast and dissonant, but always restrained. Just like predecessors The Burn Construct and Brachland, III is the result of a search to find the right balance between light and heavy, and between groove and staccato. Besides an excellent full and clear production of the recording, Peal has managed to incorporate swing and melody, resulting in a very rocking EP.

III was recorded by Oscar Bor at Source Recording Studio in The Hague. The artwork is by Ibrahim R. Ineke.

NM058: KATADREUFFE - PERIOD

Although its title might suggest otherwise, the new EP by Katadreuffe is by no means a declaration of finality. Nor is it a definitive statement in terms of identity. If anything, it is an expression of powerlessness; a temporary exercise in resignation; a subjective subjection subject to change. And while this might seem to point to a dismissal of all responsibility, Katadreuffe have done just the opposite by keeping the EP's realization as close to home as possible. This has resulted in a collection of four songs which represent the band's character in its most immediate and versatile form. At times straightforward and unforgiving, the music will just as easily twist and turn in the comforts of its own surroundings. And while the band willingly refuses to let go of the inherent tension between instruments, the songs retain a feeling of keeping their options open, as if meaning to say, albeit in its best possible connotation and in all its ambiguous glory: this isn't it. Period.
Period is the second EP that the Amsterdam outfit Katadreuffe releases on Narrominded.
